Vittorio Sella: Mountain Photographs 1879-1909

Terra, Lannoo Publishing Group, 2014 First Edition, 263pp, large hardback, 29.7 x 35.6 cm, folding panoramas, New in dustwrapper. Text in English, Dutch and French.

£75, or copy with small bump to corner, £59

A fantastic publication, with high quality images superbly reproduced.

The volume, realised in close collaboration with the Sella Foundation, gathers the photos taken by legendary Vittorio Sella at the turn of the last century while on expeditions to the world's highest mountains. In the words of Ansel Adams, 'Sella's strikingly elegant photographs revealed [the mountains] in all their sheer majesty.'

Hard Rock. Great British rock climbs from VS to E4

Vertebrate Publishing, 2020 Special Edition, 234pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper, signed by Ian Parnell, the Compiler, and numbered, and comes in a premium Wibalin presentation box with silver foil blocking on the front. Also included are two signed Malc Baxter illustrations printed on art paper, one of Clogwyn Du'r Arddu and one of the north face of Ben Nevis.

Only 200 copies of this Special Edition were produced. £65

Hard Rock is the best of British rock climbing. Featuring over fifty crags and sixty-nine routes in England, Scotland and Wales, it epitomises all that is great about traditional climbing in Great Britain.

Ken Wilson's first edition of Hard Rock was published in 1974 and quickly established itself as the definitive representation of British rock climbing. In this new edition, editor Ian Parnell has ensured Hard Rock continues to honour Ken's original concept, in particular keeping the route, not the climber, centre stage.

PUTTING SOUTH GEORGIA ON THE MAP

by Alec Trendall

The sub-Antarctic island of South Georgia, about 170 kilometres long and up to 30 kilometres wide, lies at the southern end of the Atlantic Ocean, about 2000 kilometres east of Cape Horn. Although South Georgia was visited with increasing frequency after its discovery by Captain Cook in 1775, and was for a long time a busy base for the sealing and whaling industries, a properly surveyed map of the island was not published until 1958. That map resulted from a series of small privately-organised expeditions – the South Georgia Surveys – initiated and led by Duncan Carse. Alec Trendall, who served as geologist with the South Georgia Surveys of 1951-52 and 1953-54, tells for the first time the full story of Carse's expeditions to South Georgia in the 1950s.

First Edition, 216pp, 112 photographs. Large format softback, New, £16. EXCELLENT VALUE!

The Last Great Mountain. The First Ascent of Kangchenjunga

by Mick Conefrey, 2020 First Edition, 315pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper, signed by Mick Conefrey. £36

One of 150 numbered copies, supplied with a small limited edition print of Kathmandu by illustrator, Adam T. Burton.

The epic saga of the Himalayan peak known as the hardest mountain in the world, a story that begins in 1905 and comes to a climax 50 years later. The Last Great Mountain is the final instalment of Mick Conefrey's acclaimed high altitude trilogy.

Winter 8000. Climbing the World's Highest Mountains in the Coldest Season

by Bernadette McDonald.

Vertebrate Publishing, 2020 First Edition, Special Edition, 266pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper. One of only 250 special cased bound editions, each individually numbered and signed by Bernadette McDonald. £55

Award winning author, Bernadette McDonald, tells the story of how Poland's ice warriors made winter their own, perfecting what they dubbed 'the art of suffering' as they fought their way to the summit of Everest in the winter of 1980 - the first 8000 metre peak they climbed this way but by no means their last. Winter 8000 is the story of true adventure at its most demanding.

Burdsall Richard L., Emmons Arthur B., Moore Terris & Young Jack Theodore, Men Against The Clouds. The Conquest Of Minya Konka., The Mountaineers, 1980 revised, 272pp, paperback, VG, signed inscription from expedition member, Terris Moore gifting the book to Dorothy Pilley Richards, also signed by Richards at the top of the front endpaper. Richards, 1894-1986, was a prominent mountaineer. She began climbing in Wales and joined the Fell and Rock Climbing Club, later helping found The Pinnacle Club in 1921. In the 1920s, she climbed extensively in the Alps, Britain, and North America. A rather unique item. The search for a mountain higher than Everest led Burdsall, Emmons, Moore and Young to set off across China by land in 1932. Their destination, the largely unexplored mountain ranges near the Tibetan border, in particular the unsurveyed Minya Kinka, shown then on some maps as Mt Koonka, 30,000ft. The expedition made the first ascent of the mountain, which is 24,900ft high, and for 25 years thereafter was the highest mountain climbed by Americans. 52818, £85

The Challenge of K2. A History of the Savage Mountain, Pen & Sword Books, 2011 First Edition, 227pp, hardback, 49 illuasts, New in dustwrapper. £15. K2 is one of the most demanding mountaineering challenges in the world and one of the most teacherous. Extreme and unpredictable weather and the acutely difficult climbing conditions test the technique, endurance and psychological strength of the most experienced mountaineers to the limit - and often beyond. Over 70 climbers have died or disappeared on K2. Richard Sale traces the climbing history of K2 over the last 150 years, describing how it acquired its awesome reputation. It was during the first serious attempts on the summit in the 1930s and 1950s that K2 became known as the Savage Mountain.

The development of climbing on the world's highest mountains – the 14 whose summits stand above the 8000 metre contour. Though concentrating on the new millennium, from 2000 to 2011, with an epilogue on 2011, the book also covers the first ascent of the mountains, and the new routes climbed between the first ascent and 1999. A sequel to 'On Top of the World', published in 2000 which dealt with the discovery and early climbing history of the mountains, the book also uses new material which has come to light over the last decade to re-appraise the first ascents on Annapurna, Broad Peak and K2. Illustrated with stunning images for the new routes established during the new millennium, the book also includes archival shots from the early history of the mountains. These archival shots include first ascent shots from two of the mountains which had not been made available for the earlier book. The book is completed with data on the mountains provided by co-author Eberhard Jurgalski, who maintains the world's most up-to-date database on these (and other) mountains. The data include all climbers who have summited all 14 mountains (a figure which now stands at an astonishing 28) as well as those who are nearing the complete set.

SHACKLETON'S CRITIC

The Life and Diaries of Eric Stewart Marshall

by Angie Butler and Beau Riffenburgh, Jackleberry Press, 2020 First Edition, hardback, 360 pages, signed by Angie Butler and, we are hoping, Beau Riffenburgh. £28

On 9 January 1909, Eric Stewart Marshall joined Ernest Shackleton and two others in raising the Union Jack high on the desolate Antarctic Plateau, the farthest south achieved by man. A month and a half later, his individual heroics saved his three companions, who would otherwise have been doomed to icy graves. Two years on, Marshall stood alone on a ridge deep in the interior of New Guinea, the first man from the Western world ever to see it. But Marshall received neither fame nor fortune from these great achievements and became ever more embittered. As time passed, much of Marshall's spleen was directed at Shackleton.

This book tells the story – and presents the stirring and previously unpublished diaries – of this remarkable explorer, the man who would prove to be Shackleton's severest critic. The depth of Butler and Riffenburgh's research is a feat of its own and we are given a unique insight into an Edwardian whose recognition is long overdue.
