JUST RELEASED TWO NEW TITLES

Lecoinge Georges, In The Land of The Penguins. An Account of the Voyage of the Belgica, The Erskine Press, 2020 First Edition, xxiii, 310pp, 90 illuasts, hardback, New in dustwrapper, with separate pocket housing five maps, 20pp brochure and five postcards of the expedition. £45

Over 120 years ago a Belgian expedition set sail for the Antarctic. Under the command of Adrien de Gerlache de Gomery it was the first expedition of a purely scientific nature and provided a wealth of information along with the first pictures ever taken on the ice. Though the explorers did not reach the Pole they were the first to overwinter in the Antarctic. On board the ship were Roald Amundsen and Dr Frederick Cook. Georges Lecoinge was second in command. Whilst an abridged translation was published it is extremely scarce. This is the first complete English translation of his 1904 book.

Riffenburgh Beau, The Antarctic Diary of Archibald Lang McLean, The Erskine Press, 2020 First Edition, 400pp, 100 illuasts, folding map, hardback, New in dustwrapper. £32.50

*Archibald Lang McLean in 1911 applied to join Douglas Mawson's Australasian Antarctic Expedition as the expedition's doctor and bacteriologist. It has been suggested that through this work he laid the foundations for modern physiological research in the Antarctic. When Aurora returned to collect the expedition, Mawson, Ninnis and Mertz had not returned from their sledging expedition and McLean volunteered to stay and if necessary search for Mawson. Aurora sailed on 8 February, leaving the small party behind. Mawson, McLean and the others would spend another year at their base. The story of the second year at Commonwealth Bay was originally told in Mawson's The Home of the Blizzard. The published primary sources about the second wintering have in the past been the diaries of Mawson and Madigan, two men who often did not see eye to eye. McLean's contribution therefore adds a valuable perspective.*

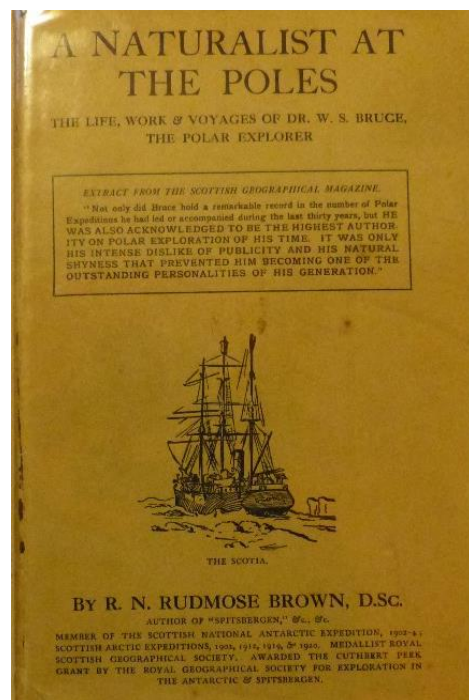

A Selection of Scarce Titles

Abruzzi, H.R.H. The Duke of the, Farther North than Nansen sein The Voyage of the Polar Star, Abruzzi, H.R.H. The Duke of the, Howard Wilford Bell, 1901 First Edition, 97pp, 3 plates, 1 folding plate, original pictorial boards, some slight fading to front board, hinges neatly and professionally strengthened, VG. A very scarce title., Luigi Amedeo, Duke of the Abruzzi (1873-1933), left for the North Pole in 1899 on board the Polar Star. Unfortunately, he lost two fingers to frostbite on the journey, so was unable to participate in the sled ride to the Pole. Captain Cagni instead made the trip, reaching 86° 34' N, a new 'Farthest North' and, as the somewhat ungracious title of this book states, 'Farther North than Nansen'. 59415, £450

Amedeo Luigi H.R.H. Of Savoy, On The "Polar Star" In The Arctic Sea (Two Volumes), Amedeo Luigi H.R.H. Of Savoy, Hutchinson & Co, 1903 First Edition, 346pp, 346-702pp, original decorative green cloth, cloth rubbed, bump to top corners, owner's signature, foxing to endpapers, very clean internally, Good+., With nineteen men the Duke of Abruzzi sailed in the steam brigantine, Stella Polare, in June 1899, to Archangel, and then across the Barents Sea to Rudolph Island, Franz Josef Land, to winter in Teplitz Bay. The objective was to undertake marches on the ice of the Arctic Basin in attempts to reach the North Pole. They achieved 83°16' North, the highest latitude achieved at that time by a sledge party. 68418, £165

Amundsen Roald, The South Pole. An Account of the Norwegian Antarctic Expedition in the 'Fram', 1910-1912. (Two Volumes), Amundsen Roald, John Murray, 1912 reprint, xxxv, 392pp, x, 449pp, original highly decorative maroon cloth, t.e.g., sunning to spines, some minor blemishes to boards, wear to extremities, owner's signature, internally very clean, Good+., Amundsen's modest account of his South Pole exploit is a classic of exploration literature. The work was wrtitten quickly by Amundsen within several month's of the party's return. This edition was published in December 1912 just one month after the First Edition. 68929, £825

Armitage Albert B., Two Years In The Antarctic Being A Narrative Of The British National Antarctic Expedition, Armitage Albert B., The Paridigm Press / Bluntisham Books, 1984 reprint, xxx, 315pp, 82 illustrations, folding map, original highly decorative green cloth, sunning to spine which is usual with this title, hint of sunning to edge of boards, minor bump to bottom corners, light wear to head and tail of spine, internally Fine, VG+. A beautifully produced reprint retaining. Scarce and desirable even in this format. 70081, £195

Brown R.N. Rudmose, A Naturalist At The Poles. The Life, Work & Voyages Of Dr. W.S. Bruce The Polar Explorer., Brown R.N. Rudmose, Seeley, Service & Co, 1923 First Edition, 316pp, original pictorial boards, some sunning to boards, wear to extremities, foxing to endpapers, Good+ in colour photocopy of original dw., Includes chapters on Bruce's expeditions to Franz Josef Land and Svalbard, his mapping and coal prospecting in Prince Charles Foreland. 50569, £160

Brown R.N. Rudmose, A Naturalist At The Poles. The Life, Work & Voyages Of Dr. W.S. Bruce The Polar Explorer., Brown R.N. Rudmose, Seeley, Service & Co, 1923 First Edition, 316pp, original pictorial boards, professional recased with new spine and original laid on, light foxing to endpapers and foreedges, an attractive tight copy, VG+ in colour photocopy of original dw. 56905. £210

Brown R.N. Rudmose, A Naturalist At The Poles. The Life, Work & Voyages Of Dr. W.S. Bruce The Polar Explorer., Brown R.N. Rudmose, Seeley, Service & Co, 1923 First Edition, 316pp, original pictorial boards, some faint speckling to spine, light foxing to endpapers and foreedges, VG in near VG scarce dw. 52690, £440 other copies are available.

Bull H. J., The Cruise of the 'Antarctic' to the South Polar Regions, Bull H. J., Edward Arnold, 1896 First Edition, 243pp, 32pp adverts, 12 illuasts, original decorative blue boards, new spine with gilt titling, wear to corner tips, VG., Bull was a Norwegian businessman and was convinced the whales reportedly found in the Ross Sea could be taken for profit and together with Svend Foyn, a whaling magnate, financed an expedition. They left Melbourne for Antarctica on 28 September 1894, crossing the Antarctic Circle on 25 December, they entered the Ross Sea and landed on Possession Island on 19 January. The expedition later landed at Cape Adare on 24 January and is considered to be the first documented landing on the Antarctic continent. Borchgrevink claimed to be the first ashore but a similar claim was also made by Captain Kristensen and A. H. F. Tunzleman, a young New Zealander. The expedition returned to Melbourne in March 1895 a commercial failure although Borchgrevink used it to launch his Antarctic exploits. 68000, £650

Conway Sir Martin, No Man's Land. A History Of Spitsbergen From Its Discovery In 1596 To The Beginning Of The Scientific Exploration Of The Country, Conway Sir Martin, Cambridge University Press, 1906 First Edition, 377pp, 11 illu., 12 maps, mint new green cloth binding, exlibrary with a few small ink stamps, small edge tear to half title and dedication page and two other leaves, one folding map reproduced, VG. A well documented account of the discovery of Svalbard, its walrus hunting and whaling history; winterings on west Spitsbergen, the era of Russian trappers, and national expeditions to the archipelago. List of principal voyages recorded 1847-1900; bibliography of the history and geography of Svalbard; the cartography with a chronological list of maps, 1598-1820, and a history of Svalbard nomenclature before the 19th century. 61983, £150 other better copies are also available.

Conway Sir Martin, With Ski & Sledge Over Arctic Glaciers, Conway Sir Martin, J. M. Dent & Co, 1898 First Edition, 240pp, 14 plates, folding map, original fawn cloth, t.e.g., professionally recased with new spine and original laid on, new endpapers, VG. A very scarce title indeed., This volume is to be regarded as an appendix to the author's 'The First Crossing of Spitsbergen'. Together they comprise an account of his exploration of the interior of West Spitsbergen undertaken during the summers of 1896 and 1897, in the company of E. J. Garwood, whose photographs illustrate this book. The text is a narrative of the explorations during 1897, when Conway and Garwood with two companions, ascended the Nordenskiöld Glacier, proceeded by boat to King's Bay, from there they sledged and skied along King's Highway Glacier into the Pretender Pass - Osborne Glacier region, and eastward into James I Land. Returning to King's Bay they sailed southward to Horn Sound and climbed Hedgehog mountain to the east. Includes a chapter on skiing, and discussion of the nature of West Spitsbergen's glaciers. An appendix contains an account of Gustaf Nordenskiöld's traverse from Horn Sound to Bell Sound. 68211, £550

De Long G.W. and De Long Emma [editor], The Voyage of the Jeannette. The Ship and Ice Journals of George W. De Long, Lieutenant-Commander U. S. N., and Commander of the Polar Expedition of 1879-1881. (Two Volumes), De Long G.W. and De Long Emma [editor], Houghton, Mifflin & Co, 1883 First Edition US, xii, 440pp, x, 441-911pp, original brown decorative cloth, wear to head and tail of spines and corner tips, Volume 1 - small tear to front endpaper repaired, small water mark to edge of margin on the last few pages, cracking to rear endpaper, VG. Volume 2 - one folding map repaired, a lovely bright VG set. Narrative of an expedition made under the authority of the U.S. Navy Dept. The Jeannette sailed from San Francisco, called at a number of places in the Bering Sea, visited Cape Serdze Kamen and went adrift near Herald Island. The drift continued north and west for nineteen months until the ship was finally crushed and sank on June 12th 1881, northeast of the New Siberian Islands. Account of the search for the 33 men who left the ship, of whom 25 reached the Lena delta, where De Long and 11 other perished. 65530, £350

Doorly Gerald S., The Voyages Of The 'Morning', Doorly Gerald S., Smith, Elder & Co., 1916 First Edition, xx, 224pp, 22 illu., folding map, original decorative blue cloth with penguin to front board, professionally recased with new spine and original relaid, a few blemishes to boards, foxing to endpapers and folding map, inscription, page edges dusty, internally clean, Good++-. A strong copy of a very scarce title indeed., Doorly was Third Officer on Scott's relief ship the Morning in 1902-3 and 1903-4, serving under Capt. William Colbeck. Colbeck was going to write an account of the voyages but when this didn't happen Doorly undertook the effort. He produced not only a very interesting, pleasant and readable firsthand account but also one of the scarcest books of Antarctic exploration. 68007, £750

Holland Clive, Arctic Exploration And Development c. 500 B.C to 1915., Holland Clive, Garland Publishing, 1994 First Edition US, xvi, 704pp, 30 maps, original blue decorative cloth, bright cloth, some staining to foreedges and just slightly to head of pages, but not affecting the pages themselves, small bump to top corner, VG., A fantastic reference, only 500 copies produced. 66549, £150 other copies available.

Hurley Captain Frank, Argonauts Of The South, Hurley Captain Frank, G.P. Putman's Sons, 1925 First Edition US, xv, 290pp, 75 illu., maps, original green cloth with gilt, spine lettering a little dull, t.e.g., owner's signature, slight wear to head and tail of spine, some speckling to edges of front board, some foxing to plates, VG., Being a narrative of voyagings and polar seas and adventures in the Antarctic with Sir Douglas Mawson and Sir Ernest Shackleton. 70330, £340 other copies are available.

Hanssen Helmer, Voyages Of A Modern Viking, Hanssen Helmer, George Routledge, 1936 First Edition, 216pp, original blue cloth boards, coming soon, please ask for full details. A scarce title., This includes the only first hand account of Amundsen's South Pole Journey apart from Amundsen's. Hanssen was one of Amundsen's men in the Gjoa on the North West Passage Expedition, and was one of the five men who stood first at the South Pole in 1911. He captained the Maud which made a successful trip through the North East Passage. coming soon, please ask for full details.

Joyce Ernest Mills, The South Polar Trail. The Log of the Imperial Trans-Antarctic Expedition, Joyce Ernest Mills, Duckworth, 1929 First Edition, 220pp, 61 photographs, original blue boards, new endpapers, bump to bottom corners, wear to extremities, Good+ in colour photocopy of original dw., A primary account of the Ross Sea shore party of Shackleton's Endurance Expedition 1914-1917. Their task was to lay dumps to the pole for Shackleton's southern party. This less told story from the expedition is equally harrowing. A very scarce title. 55066, £360

Koldewey Captain, The German Arctic Expedition of 1869-70, and Narrative of the Wreck of the Hansa in the Ice, Koldewey Captain, Sampson Low, Marston, Low, & Searle, 1874 First Edition, viii, 590pp, numerous woodcut illusts, 4 coloured, 2 maps, new green cloth binding with original spine laid on and original ship illustration retained to front board, some pages dusty and occasional light foxing, a few foreedges ragged, VG. A strong tight copy. 66634, £475

Lewin W. Henry, The Great North Pole Fraud, Lewin W. Henry, C W Daniel Company Ltd, 1935 First Edition, 192pp, original orange cloth, some fading and soiling to boards, heavy wear to edge of boards, Good in colour photocopy of original dw. A very scarce book indeed., Lewin published a journal annually, the Individualist, which during its 23 years of issue, ending in 1930, was largely responsible for a more or less continuous anti-Peary publicity. He attempts to convince any unbiassed person that Peary never reached the North Pole. 61739, £260

Mawson Sir Douglas, Australasian Antarctic Expedition 1911-14 under the Leadership of Sir Douglas Mawson: Scientific Reports (Complete Set), Mawson Sir Douglas, Adelaide and Sydney: Government Printers, 1916-47 First Edition, A fine set in the original publisher's paper wrappers. Complete all 91 parts as issued from 1916 to 1947. No prior ownership marks, no library marks, no faults, exactly as issued. PUTTING SOUTH GEORGIA ON THE MAP

by Alec Trendall

The sub-Antarctic island of South Georgia, about 170 kilometres long and up to 30 kilometres wide, lies at the southern end of the Atlantic Ocean, about 2000 kilometres east of Cape Horn. Although South Georgia was visited with increasing frequency after its discovery by Captain Cook in 1775, and was for a long time a busy base for the sealing and whaling industries, a properly surveyed map of the island was not published until 1958. That map resulted from a series of small privately-organised expeditions – the South Georgia Surveys – initiated and led by Duncan Carse. Alec Trendall, who served as geologist with the South Georgia Surveys of 1951-52 and 1953-54, tells for the first time the full story of Carse's expeditions to South Georgia in the 1950s.

ORDEAL BY ICE

Ordeal By Ice. Ships of the Antarctic

Bryan Rorke, Seaforth Publishing, 2011 First Edition, 544pp, 189x247mm, maps, colour photos, black and white photos, hardback, New in dw, label signed by Rorke Bryan to title page. £29

This richly illustrated book is destined to become the reference book on ships of the Antarctic.

Over the last three centuries hundreds of ships have voyaged in Antarctic waters, challenged by poorly-charted waters, storms, pack ice, icebergs, and disease. This is the story of these ships, the expeditions they supported, and their subsequent history. Using extensive research in archives, museums, libraries and private sources around the world, Rorke Bryan brings the stories of these ships into a single, comprehensive record. Plans, photos, paintings and maps enhance description of the expeditions and activities of the ships. This authoritative work fills an important gap in Antarctic literature. A substantial volume, a must have for any polar collection.

WITH SCOTT BEFORE THE MAST

Francis Davies and edited by Joy Watts, Reardon Publishing, 2020 First Edition, 152pp, hardback, New, signed by publisher and contributor, Nicholas Reardon. £36

A Limited Edition of only 160 copies is also available, Special leather bound signed and numbered, £180

These are the Journals of Francis Davies Leading Shipwright RN when on board Captain Scott's "Terra Nova" British Antarctic Expedition 1910 – 1913.

Never seen before photos and historical artefacts, kept safe by his decadences for over 100 years. It is a unique below decks prospective as most records of the expedition are the accounts of officers. Before the mast means 'to serve as an ordinary seaman in a sailing ship'. This makes it a rare and hugely important account, presenting a viewpoint from the lower ranks.

A beautifully produced reprint of the original French edition., *The first French expedition to the Antarctic set sail in August 1903 under the command of Jean-Baptiste Charcot. He had sailed the waterways of Europe until, in 1902, he visited Iceland and the Faroes. He reached the Arctic Circle and his taste for polar voyaging was established. On his return he commissioned a vessel to be built - Français. By this stage, although an amateur, Charcot had become quite well known, though Scott referred to him — with possibly a touch of disparagement — as 'the polar gentleman'. Debenham Frank, In The Antarctic. Stories Of Scott's Last Expedition., The Erskine Press, 1998 reprint, 146pp, decorative boards, New, no dustwrapper was issued., Frank Debenham was a member of the scientific staff on Scott's 1910 expedition. He conceived the idea for a Polar Institute whilst sitting in Shackleton's hut at Cape Royds and after the death of the polar party he campaigned for a living memorial to Scott. On 26th November 1920 the Scott Polar Research Institute came into being and Frank Debenham was its first director. When he returned from the Antarctic in 1913 he resolved not to publish any reminiscences but at the urging of many friends he published, in 1952, IN THE ANTARCTIC which deals chiefly with the three years he spent there. The book has extensive illustrations which the author hopesmay convey something of the spirit of harmony which reigned in that crammed but cosy hut forty years ago. 63446, £15, 'In The Arctic', also available.

Reginald Skelton was the Chief Engineer aboard RSS Discovery, accompanying Captain Robert Falcon Scott on his first expedition to the Antarctic from 1901 to 1904.

His diaries, edited by his granddaughter Judy, give a fascinating and absorbing account of the dramas, tragedies and adventures encountered by Scott and his men during their two years based at Hut Point. They are published as an almost exact facsimile of the original seven volumes, with previously unseen family photos as well as numerous snapshots of the expedition taken by Skelton himself who was the official photographer.

Ludecke Cornelia & Summerhayes Colin, The Third Reich In Antarctica. The German Antarctic Expedition 1938-39, Bluntisham Books / Erskine Press, 2012 First Edition, 259pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper. The origins of the Third German Antarctic Expedition lie in a combination of the aspirations of German scientists to contribute to exploring and understanding the Antarctic environment, and the Nazi Party's drive for self-sufficiency on the road to war. In 1936/37 Germany had joined the whaling nations in the South Atlantic, keen to obtain whale oil without having to use valuable foreign currency reserves needed for rearmament. Considering that it needed a local whaling base, Germany decided to explore the possibility of setting up a supply base on the coast of Dronning Maud Land. This is the story of an ambitious and little-known expedition, which set out to map a large piece of Antarctica from the air, and in the process discovered an 800 km long mountain range and previously unsuspected freshwater lakes. £28

Individually numbered, only 400 copies. On 10 November 1912, the Far Eastern Party, consisting of three men and seventeen dogs set off on a sledging trip. The men were Douglas Mawson, Xavier Mertz and Belgrave Ninnis. Two of these men tragically died, and only the leader, Douglas Mawson, returned after what has been described as the greatest survival story in the history of exploration. It is evident from his diary that the young Ninnis was determined to follow in his father's steps as a polar explorer. Inside the diary is the story of a young man and his determined and ultimately successful attempt to become a polar explorer. It is a continuous record, from March 1908 to the final entry on 9 November 1912, though this book concentrates on his Antarctic endeavours. 70271, £32

TWO BOOKS BY DAVID WILSON

NIMROD ILLUSTRATED

Pictures from Lieutenant Shackleton's British Antarctic Expedition

Wilson, M. David, Reardon Publishing, 2009 First Edition, 168pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper, signed by David Wilson, the great nephew of Edward Wilson. £45

A Limited Edition of only 150 copies is also available, leather bound, boxed, signed and numbered, £160

Published to celebrate the centenary of one of the most exciting expeditions of the Heroic Age of Antarctic. The book is a remarkable collage of expedition photographs, paintings and ephemera in a deliberate reminiscence of the expedition scrapbooks kept by so many of the expedition participants at the time. Many of the images are rarely seen, if ever before published, whilst others are better known. They tell the story of the British Antarctic Expedition 1907-1909 which saw the first use of ponies and motor cars in the Antarctic; achieved the first ascent of Mount Erebus; achieved the first attainment of the South Magnetic Pole; and, took Shackleton within 100 miles of the South Geographic Pole to attain a dramatic new 'Farthest South' record. This was the expedition that made Shackleton's name as an explorer and for which he was knighted.

A Record Of Antarctica., Bluntisham Books / Erskine Press, 2011 First Edition, 414pp, decorative boards, hardback, New in dustwrapper. The Japanese Antarctic Expedition, 1910-12, under the leadership of army lieutenant Nobu Shirase was the first exploration of Antarctic territory by Japan. The entire trip south was dogged by poor weather and when the coast of Victoria Land was finally sighted conditions were so bad that a landing was impossible. They sailed on through the Ross Sea only to find even worse ice and soon it was impossible to go any further. Shirase ordered the crew to turn the ship northward for Australia. Captain Nomura went back to Japan, with the secretary to the expedition, returning some five months later with provisions, ships' parts and other equipment. During the following season a second attempt was made to reach an Antarctic landfall, with the specific objective of exploring King Edward VII Land. The expedition sailed some 27,000 miles since leaving Japan and despite not reaching the Pole, they achieved many of their other goals. £32

Taylor Andrew, Two Years Below The Horn. A Personal Memoir of Operation Tabarin, The Erskine Press, 2017 First Edition, 351pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper., Early in 1944, nine men landed on a tiny, barren island off the west coast of the Graham Land Peninsula in Antarctica. Armed with only a small assortment of rifles and pistols and with an obsolete 12 pounder mounted on the bows of their decrepit supply vessel, officially, their purpose was to prevent German U-boats and surface raiders from using Antarctic and Sub-Antarctic harbours for refuelling and resupply. Unofficially, they were tasked with reasserting British territorial rights in the face of increasingly confident incursions by neutral Argentina. This two year expedition, code-named Operation Tabarin, was the precursor to the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey, FIDS. £32

THE HAKLUYT SOCIETY

Founded in 1846, the Hakluyt Society is a registered charity based in London, which seeks to advance knowledge and education by the publication of scholarly editions of primary records of voyages, travels and other geographical material. The society is named after Richard Hakluyt (1552-1616), collector and editor of narratives of voyages and travels and other documents relating to English interests overseas, his most celebrated work being The Principal Navigations, Voyages and Discoveries of the English Nation. His name was almost certainly pronounced hak'loowt, the family having come from the forest of Clwyd in the historic county of Radnor.

We are pleased to offer a large collection of 227 Volumes from the First, Second, Third and Extra Series of publications. The set of volumes are from the private library of The Cruising Association and bear a bookplate, occasional stamp and most with mark to the spine. SHACKLETON'S CRITIC

The Life and Diaries of Eric Stewart Marshall

by Angie Butler and Beau Riffenburgh, Jackleberry Press, 2020 First Edition, hardback, 360 pages, signed by Angie Butler and, we are hoping, Beau Riffenburgh. £28

On 9 January 1909, Eric Stewart Marshall joined Ernest Shackleton and two others in raising the Union Jack high on the desolate Antarctic Plateau, the farthest south achieved by man. A month and a half later, his individual heroics saved his three companions, who would otherwise have been doomed to icy graves. Two years on, Marshall stood alone on a ridge deep in the interior of New Guinea, the first man from the Western world ever to see it. But Marshall received neither fame nor fortune from these great achievements and became ever more embittered. As time passed, much of Marshall's spleen was directed at Shackleton.

This book tells the story – and presents the stirring and previously unpublished diaries – of this remarkable explorer, the man who would prove to be Shackleton's severest critic. The depth of Butler and Riffenburgh's research is a feat of its own and we are given a unique insight into an Edwardian whose recognition is long overdue.
