TWO NEW SHACKLETON RELATED TITLES

The Quest Chronicle. The story of the Shackleton-Rowett Expedition, Chojceki Jan, Goldcrest Books, 2022 First Limited Edition, 408pp, over 100 illustrations, hardback, New in dustwrapper. One of only 500 copies individually numbered and signed by Jan Chojceki.

In 1921, a converted Norwegian sealer, Quest, carried the legendary explorer Sir Ernest Shackleton on what turned out to be his last expedition. How did this scheme come to be almost completely financed by John Quiller Rowett. Why did the book of the expedition, Shackleton's Last Voyage published in 1923, name Frank Wild, as the author, when in fact it was written chiefly by the ship's surgeon, Dr Alexander Macklin? Why did the up and coming Australian adventurer, George Hubert Wilkins, choose to go with Shackleton on the Quest, instead of joining the expedition of the Canadian explorer Stefansson or making polar flights with Amundsen? Shackleton's Last Voyage did not tell the whole story. Then there are other puzzles to be resolved such as why the Quest's seaplane – which would have been a polar first – never flew. This account sets out the events that occurred before, during and after the voyage, told through the words of the protagonists with their letters, logs and diaries, many of which have not been previously published., £38.

With Shackleton and Mawson. The Antarctic Diaries of Frank Wild, Riffenburgh Beau & Butler Angie, The Erskine Press, 2022 First Edition, xxi, 253pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper, signed label on the half title by Beau Riffenburgh.

Frank Wild was the only man to serve in the Antarctic under the British Empire's three greats, Scott, Shackleton and Mawson. This book is a chance to view Wild's role and accomplishments from his own writings, primarily his diary kept during the Southern Journey of Shackleton's BAE, his sledging diary from Mawson's Expedition, and his report to Mawson about the operations of AAE's Western Base, which he commanded in 1912-13. These have been quoted in other works but they have never been published before in their entirety., £38.

A Selection of Scarce Titles

Abruzzi, H.R.H. The Duke of the, Farther North than Nansen being The Voyage of the Polar Star, Howard Wilford Bell, 1901 First Edition, 97pp, 3 plates, 1 folding plate, original pictorial boards, some light soiling to boards, VG. A very scarce title., Luigi Amedeo, Duke of the Abruzzi (1873-1933), left for the North Pole in 1899 on board the Polar Star. Unfortunately, he lost two fingers to frostbite on the journey, so was unable to participate in the sled ride to the Pole. Captain Cagni instead made the trip, reaching 86° 34' N, a new 'Farthest North' and, as the somewhat ungracious title of this book states, 'Farther North than Nansen'., 74398, £695.

Arnesen Odd, FRAM, Hele Norges Skute, Jacob Dybwads Forlag, 1942 First Edition, 297pp, illu., original beige linen backed blue boards, light wear to extremities, small private sticker of Ann Savours Shirley, the polar historian, and signed inscription by her, VG, no dustwrapper. A scarce title, text in Norwegian., , 74040, £260.

Begbie Harold, Shackleton. A Memory, Mills & Boon, 1922 First Edition, 89pp, original blue cloth, a few blemishes to boards, rear board has a bookplate of The Institutes Association of South Australia Incorporated, and their ink stamp appears on a few pages, library bookplate on front pastedown, Good in colour photocopy of original dw. A very scarce title., A brief but comely eulogy and character study published just after Shackleton's death. Begbie, a journalist, met Shackleton between the Endurance and Quest expeditions and based his book on conversations and interviews with Shackleton and others who knew him. Emily Shackleton was enraged to receive a copy of Begbie's book probably due to the usurpation of publishing priority, and certainly over some of Begbie's facts and whether he was sufficiently acquainted with Shackleton to write such a personal portrait., 74591, £160.

Begbie Harold, Shackleton. A Memory, Mills & Boon, 1922 First Edition, 89pp, original blue cloth, foxing to endpapers and prelims, Good+ in colour photocopy of original dw. A very scarce title. 74450, £195.

Begbie Harold, Shackleton. A Memory, Mills & Boon, 1922 First Edition, 89pp, original blue cloth, light foxing to endpapers and foreedges, VG in colour photocopy of original dw. A very scarce title. 74392, £220.

Binney George, Perrett Rev W.W., Hutton Dr S.K., The Eskimo Book of Knowledge. Rendered Into The Labrador Dialect by The Reverend W.W. Perrett. Aglait Ilisimatiksat Inungnut Ilingnajut, Hudson's Bay Company, 1931 First Edition, 237pp, original pictorial boards, map endpapers, private blindstamp, small inscription, relevant newspaper article tipped to front endpaper, VG+, Text in Labrador dialect and English., 72887, £195.

Brown R. N. Rudmose, Pirie J. H. H. & Mossman R. C., The Voyage of the Scotia - Being the Record of a Voyage of Exploration in Antarctic Seas by Three Of The Staff, William Blackwood & Sons, 1906 First Edition, xxiv, 375pp, folding map, original decorative green cloth, professionally recased with new spine and original laid on, repairs to folding map, owner's name in ink on half title, internally very clean, VG., William Speirs Bruce flatly declined to write a narrative about the Scottish National Antarctic Expedition maintaining that the expedition was purely a scientific enterprise and he focused on the scientific reporting. Sadly a general book on the Scottish expedition would have helped him a great deal in obtaining recognition for his work. Instead the authorship of a popular narrative was taken up by three of the scientific staff who wrote this outstanding account., 72804, £695.

Brown R.N. Rudmose, A Naturalist At The Poles. The Life, Work & Voyages Of Dr. W.S. Bruce The Polar Explorer., Seeley, Service & Co, 1923 First Edition, 316pp, original pictorial boards, new spine in closely matching cloth, VG in colour photocopy of original dw., Includes chapters on Bruce's expeditions to Franz Josef Land and Svalbard, his mapping and coal prospecting in Prince Charles Foreland., 55084, £150.

Brown R.N. Rudmose, A Naturalist At The Poles. The Life, Work & Voyages Of Dr. W.S. Bruce The Polar Explorer., Seeley, Service & Co, 1923 First Edition, 316pp, original pictorial boards, professional recased with new spine and original laid on, light foxing to endpapers and foreedges, an attractive tight copy, VG+ in colour photocopy of original dw., Includes chapters on Bruce's expeditions to Franz Josef Land and Svalbard, his mapping and coal prospecting in Prince Charles Foreland., 56905, £175.

Conway Sir Martin, No Man's Land. A History Of Spitsbergen From Its Discovery In 1596 To The Beginning Of The Scientific Exploration Of The Country, Cambridge University Press, 1906 First Edition, 377pp, 11 illu. 12 maps, original green cloth with gilt titling, professionally recased with new spine and original laid on, exlibrary, small ink stamps, the Admiralty Chart has been reproduced, near VG., Results of research over a period of nine years, begun as preliminary studies to the author's expeditions, 1896-97. A well documented account of the discovery of Svalbard, its walrus hunting and whaling history; winterings on west Spitsbergen, the era of Russian trappers, and national expeditions to the archipelago. List of principal voyages recorded 1847-1900; bibliography of the history and geography of Svalbard; the cartography with a chronological list of maps, 1598-1820, and a history of Svalbard nomenclature before the 19th century., 63363, £220.

Conway Sir Martin, No Man's Land. A History Of Spitsbergen From Its Discovery In 1596 To The Beginning Of The Scientific Exploration Of The Country, Cambridge University Press, 1906 First Edition, 377pp, 11 illu. 12 maps, original green cloth with gilt titling, private bookplate, corners slightly bumped, VG. An attractive copy of a very scarce title. 61584, £295.

Conway Sir Martin, With Ski & Sledge Over Arctic Glaciers, J. M. Dent & Co, 1898 First Edition, 240pp, 14 plates, folding map, original fawn cloth, t.e.g., professionally recased with new spine and original laid on, corners worn, some marks to boards, a one tenth section of the folding map missing, internally very clean, Good. A very scarce title indeed., This volume is to be regarded as an appendix to the author's 'The First Crossing of Spitsbergen'. Together they comprise an account of his exploration of the interior of West Spitsbergen undertaken during the summers of 1896 and 1897, in the company of E. J. Garwood, whose photographs illustrate this book. The text is a narrative of the explorations during 1897, when Conway and Garwood with two companions, ascended the Nordenskiöld Glacier, proceeded by boat to King's Bay, from there they sledged and skied along King's Highway Glacier into the Pretender Pass - Osborne Glacier region, and eastward into James I Land. Returning to King's Bay they sailed southward to Horn Sound and climbed Hedgehog mountain to the east. Includes a chapter on skiing, and discussion of the nature of West Spitsbergen's glaciers. An appendix contains an account of Gustaf Nordenskiöld's traverse from Horn Sound to Bell Sound in 1890., 68707, £340.

Conway Sir Martin, With Ski & Sledge Over Arctic Glaciers, J. M. Dent & Co, 1898 First Edition, 240pp, 14 plates, folding map, mint new brown cloth, t.e.g., original spine relaid and gilt motif relaid to front board, label removal mark to spine, two small ink stamps of Davos English Library, tear to folding map, exceptionally clean indeed, binding Mint, overall VG-. An attractive copy of a very scarce title. 59862, £375.

Conway Sir William Martin, The First Crossing of Spitsbergen. Being an Account of an Inland Journey of Exploration and Survey, with Description of Several Mountain Ascents, of Boat Expeditions in Ice Fjord, of a Voyage to North-East-Land, the Seven Islands, down Hinloopen Strait, nearly to Wiches Land, and into most of the Fjords of Spitsbergen, and of an almost complete circumnavigation of the main Island., J.M. Dent & Co., 1897 First Edition, 371pp, 8 coloured plates, 100 illu. 2 folding maps, original green and cream cloth boards with bevelled edges, professionally recased with new spine and original laid on, t.e.g., very occasional foxing, very clean indeed, VG., The author spent the summers of 1896 and 1897 exploring the interior of West Spitsbergen. They made 13 mountain ascents, produced a survey sketch of about 600 sq miles of central West Spitsbergen, almost completed a circumnavigation of the main island., 66537, £280.

Doorly Gerald S., The Voyages Of The 'Morning', Smith, Elder & Co., 1916 First Edition, xx, 224pp, 22 illu. folding map, original decorative blue cloth with penguin to front board, professionally recased with new spine and original relaid, a few blemishes to boards, foxing to endpapers and folding map, inscription, page edges dusty, internally clean, Good++-. A strong copy of a very scarce title indeed., Doorly was Third Officer on Scott's relief ship the Morning in 1902-3 and 1903-4, serving under Capt. William Colbeck, who had sailed with Borchgrevink, and under Second Officer Edward Evans. Colbeck was going to write an account of the voyages but when this didn't happen Doorly undertook the effort. He produced not only a very interesting, pleasant and readable first hand account but also one of the scarcest books of Antarctic exploration. The book records the discovery of Scott Island and the first landing on Beaufort Island, and personal impressions of the Southern party upon their return., 68007, £625.

Fisher Alexander, A Journal of a Voyage Of Discovery to the Arctic Regions in His Majesty's Ships Hecla and Griper in the Years 1819 & 1820, Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, 1821 First Edition, xi, 320pp, two maps one folding, modern half leather with raised bands, binding Fine, maps foxed, some scattered foxing elsewhere, overall VG+, Journal by an officer on Parry's expedition. The Hecla and Griper, May 1819 - October 1820, sailed up Baffin Bay, through Lancaster Sound and Barrow Strait to the south side of Melville Island where they wintered and returned to England by the same route the following year. The expedition discovered and penetrated a short distance into Prince Regent's Inlet, discovered Banks Island, and surveyed the south shores of Barrow Strait., 72087, £280.

Fricker Dr. Karl, The Antarctic Regions, George Allen & Co, 1904 Second Edition, xii, 292pp, original decorative boards, minor sunning to rear board, slight wear to top and bottom of spine, new endpapers, repairs to folding map, VG+. An attractive tight copy., At the time of publication, the book constituted by far the best general overview of the Antarctic regions., 57359, £175.

Greely Adolphus W., Three Years Of Arctic Service, An Account of the Lady Franklin Bay Expedition of 1881-84 and the Attainment of the Farthest North (Two Volumes), Charles Scribner, 1886 First Edition US, xxv, 428pp, xii, 444pp, green cloth bindings with maroon leather labels, text blocks edged in red, Vol I lacks the frontispiece, Vol II lacks one of the front endpapers and the final folding map, otherwise a VG set., This United States expedition during the First International Polar Year, based at Fort Conger, Lady Franklin Bay, on the east coast of Ellesmere Island, explored the north coast of Greenland from Cape Bryant to Cape Washington, the interior and west coast of Grinnell Land, and extended the mapping of Hayes Sound. As relief ships failed to reach them, members of the party made a march out of the Hall Basin area, all but seven dying of starvation before rescue at Cape Sabine, Smith Sound. This narrative of the expedition's course by the leader, includes accounts of the battle with sea ice, the sledge journeys, the life of the men in the camp and on the march, and the geography of the territory explored; with a chapter on polar ice., 57465, £170.

Hanssen Helmer, Voyages of a Modern Viking, George Routledge, 1936 First Edition, xiii, 216pp, original blue cloth, slight soiling to cloth, light wear to extremities, inscription, moderate foxing, Good+ in colour photocopy of original dw. A scarce title., This includes the only first hand account of Amundsen's South Pole Journey apart from Amundsen's. Hanssen was one of Amundsen's men in the Gjoa on the North West Passage Expedition, and was one of the five men who stood first at the South Pole in 1911. He captained the Maud which made a successful trip through the North East Passage., 74393, £295.

Hanssen Helmer, Voyages of a Modern Viking, George Routledge, 1936 First Edition, xiii, 216pp, original blue cloth, light wear to extremities, small neat repair to half title, owner's signature, foreedge foxing, occasional light foxing, VG in colour photocopy of original dw. A scarce title. 72357, £325.

Holland Clive, Arctic Exploration And Development c. 500 B.C to 1915., Garland Publishing, 1994 First Edition US, xvi, 704pp, 30 maps, original blue decorative cloth, Fine. A lovely copy., A fantastic reference, only 500 copies produced., 70101, £160.

Huish Robert, The Last Voyage Of Capt. Sir John Ross, Knt, R. N. to the Arctic Regions; for the Discovery of a North West Passage; Performed in the Years 1829, 30, 31, 32 and 33. To which is prefixed An Abridgement of the former

Voyages of Captns. Ross, Parry, & other Celebrated Navigators to the Northern Latitudes., John Saunders, 1835 First Edition, ii, 717pp, 44pp supplement, 7 illu., map, half brown leather binding, very clean internally, VG., Supplement is titled The Position of the North Magnetic Pole., 72088, £240.

Joyce Ernest Mills, The South Polar Trail. The Log of the Imperial Trans-Antarctic Expedition, Duckworth, 1929 First Edition, 220pp, 61 photographs, original blue boards, new endpapers, bump to bottom corners, wear to extremities, Good+ in colour photocopy of original dw., A primary account of the Ross Sea shore party of Shackleton's Endurance Expedition 1914-1917. Their task was to lay dumps to the pole for Shackleton's southern party. This less told story from the expedition is equally harrowing, an incredible story. A very scarce title., 55066, £295.

Joyce Ernest Mills, The South Polar Trail. The Log of the Imperial Trans-Antarctic Expedition, Duckworth, 1929 First Edition, 220pp, 61 photographs, original blue cloth, internally very clean, VG in colour photocopy of original dw. 72052, £340.

Hurley Captain Frank, Argonauts Of The South, G.P. Putman's Sons, 1925 First Edition, xv, 290pp, 75 illuasts, maps, rebound in green cloth, t.e.g., owner's signature, very clean internally, a couple of page edges a little ragged, VG- in colour photocopy of original scarce dw., Being a narrative of voyagings and polar seas and adventures in the Antarctic with Sir Douglas Mawson and Sir Ernest Shackleton., 71219, £240.

Hurley Captain Frank, Argonauts Of The South, G.P. Putman's Sons, 1925 First Edition US, xv, 290pp, 75 illuasts, maps, original green cloth with gilt, a few minor blemishes to cloth, spine lettering a little dull as is usual, front board titling fading, t.e.g., corners rounded, wear to extremities, Good+ in colour photocopy of original dw. 71439, £275.

Hurley Captain Frank, Argonauts Of The South, G.P. Putman's Sons, 1925 First Edition, xv, 290pp, 75 illuasts, maps, original green cloth with gilt, spine lettering a little dull as is usual, t.e.g., owner's signature, slight wear to head and tail of spine, some speckling to edges of front board, some foxing to plates, VG in colour photocopy of original scarce dw., 70330, £295.

Hussey Dr L.D.A., South With Shackleton, Sampson Low, 1951 New Imp, ix, 182pp, original grey cloth, map endpapers, private bookplate, tiny owner's signature tipped out, very clean indeed, VG in Good repaired dw, A most scarce title relating Shackleton's Endurance Expedition. Hussey's banjo playing did much to keep up the spirits of the expedition members., 73389, £155.

Hussey Dr L.D.A., South With Shackleton, Sampson Low, 1951 New Imp, ix, 182pp, original grey cloth, map endpapers, very clean indeed, VG+ in VG dw with some small edge tears. An attractive copy. 74161, £180.

Hussey Dr L.D.A., South With Shackleton, Sampson Low, 1949 First Edition, ix, 182pp, original grey cloth, some sellotape residue marks to half title and reverse, VG+ in VG price clipped dw with a little chipping to head and tail of spine. 74382, £250.

Koldewey Captain, The German Arctic Expedition of 1869-70, and Narrative of the Wreck of the Hansa in the Ice, Sampson Low, Marston, Low, & Searle, 1874 First Edition, viii, 590pp, numerous woodcut illuasts, 4 coloured, 2 maps, new green cloth binding with original spine laid on and original ship illustration retained to front board, some pages dusty and occasional light foxing, a few foreedges ragged, VG. Mawson Sir Douglas, Australasian Antarctic Expedition 1911-14 under the Leadership of Sir Douglas Mawson: Scientific Reports (Complete Set), Adelaide and Sydney: Government Printers, 1916-47 First Edition, A fine set in the original publishers paper wrappers. Complete all 91 parts as issued from 1916 to 1947. No prior ownership marks, no library marks, no faults, exactly as issued. It is exceptional to find a set in totally original condition that hasn't been institutionalised in some way. You will not find a better set. Please contact us for additional details, photographs and shipping costs., These voluminous reports were published over many years, from 1916 to 1947. In all, ninety-one separate publications were grouped into three series, made up of twenty two volumes. It is exceedingly rare to find a complete set of the reports. The work emanating from the expedition ranks it as one of the great scientific expeditions of the heroic era. The reports themselves were attractively prepared, with photographs and charts of high quality. Over 4000 pages of text, charts, plates and maps. Series A - Geography, Geology, Glaciology. Volume I. – Volume V. Series B - Meteorology, Aural Observations, Wireless Observations, Magnetics, Tides. Volume I. – Volume VII. Series C - Zoology, Botany, Bacteriology. Volume I.- Volume X, 55839, £3,750.

Murdoch W.G. Burn, From Edinburgh To The Antarctic. An Artist's Notes and Sketches during the Dundee Antarctic Expedition of 1892-93, Longmans, Green And Co, 1894 First Edition, xi, 364pp, plus adverts, original decorative cloth, professionally recased, new spine with original laid on, new endpapers, light foxing, heavier foxing to first few pages, VG. An attractive strong copy., Murdoch heard about the expedition from William Speirs Bruce, who had already signed on the expedition. Murdoch signed on the Balaena within a week of its departure. He believed that his artistic talents would benefit the scientists, he became not only the artist but also the expedition's principal chronicler. His narrative covers the voyage south at great length, providing a fascinating picture of shipboard life. The Falkland Islands account is well detailed, and the Antarctic section of the narrative contains astute observations of the wildlife and sealing operations. Bruce contributed a chapter summarising the scientific observations., 66999, £375.

Nansen Fridtjof, The First Crossing of Greenland (Two Volumes), Longmans, Green & Co, 1890 First Edition, xxii, 510pp, x, 509pp, 24pp adverts, 12 plates, 5 folding maps, numerous engravings, original highly decorative brown cloth with silver gilt, professionally recased with new spines and originals laid on, some light foxing occasionally moderate, publisher's blindstamp, repair to map, VG. A strong tight set., Narrative of the expedition of Nansen and Sverdrup with four companions to East Greenland to cross the icecap. Contains descriptions of the equipment, the voyage from Norway via Iceland to Umivik, the East Greenland coast and its ice belt and previous attempts to penetrate the ice belt there. A survey of previous attempts to explore the Greenland icecap, a detailed account of the expedition's crossing of the inland ice, Umivik to Godthaab on skis, Aug-Sept 1888. The wintering at Godthaab 1888-89, with observations on Eskimo life, and a chapter on skiing., 66538, £450.

SCOTTISH ARCTIC CLUB

The Scottish Arctic Club are a group of enthusiasts with a common interest in the Arctic regions. Founded in 1970, many of its members have been on expeditions to the arctic and have travelled extensively there.

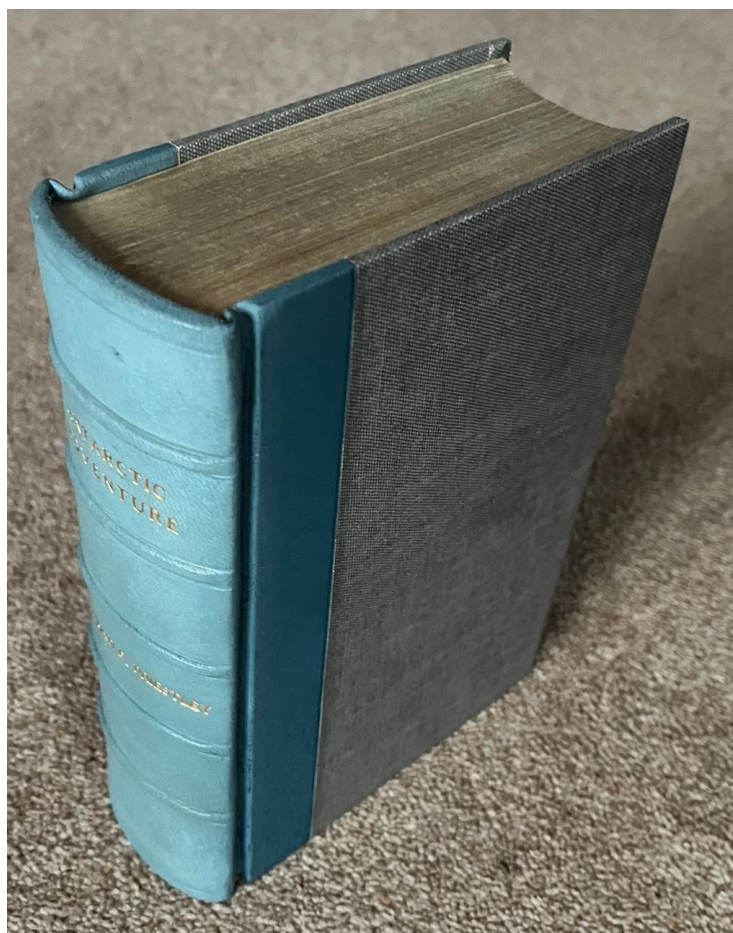

The main activities of the Club are the Annual Gathering and Supper, the Spring Meet and the Award of Expedition Grants.

Meetings are held in Scotland with members travelling from all over the world to attend.

New members are welcome, for more information and how to join, please see their website www.scottisharcticclub.org.uk

Nares Captain R.N., Official Report Of The Recent Arctic Expedition, John Murray, 1876 First Edition, 96pp, beautiful new half leather binding with marbled boards, small library ink stamps, some soiling to many pages and occasional foxing, lacking the frontispiece map, internally Good. A most attractive binding. A very scarce title indeed., Official report to the Admiralty, this is the first published account of the arctic expedition led by Captain George Nares in the ships Alert and Discovery. , 48756, £425.

Peary R.E., Northward Over The Great Ice (Two Volumes), Methuen & Co, 1898 First Edition, 521pp, 625pp, maps diagrams, approx 800 illusts, original decorative boards, professionally recased with new spines and original cloth laid on, light wear to extremities, corner tips worn, one plate has margins trimmed, VG., A Narrative of Life and Work along the Shores and upon the Interior Ice-Cap of Northern Greenland in the Years 1886 and 1891-1897., 68029, £160.

Priestley Raymond E., Antarctic Adventure. Scott's Northern Party, T. Fisher Unwin, 1914 First Edition, 382pp, 150 illusts, folding maps, blue quarter leather binding with raised bands, pages have been trimmed very slightly, foxing to half title, light foxing to a few pages but generally very clean internally, small tear to margin of one plate, VG, signed by Raymond Priestley on the title page. The very scarce First Edition of an important polar title., A gripping read covering two winters, Cape Adare and Inexpressible Island, and the journey back to Ross Island to rescue themselves after the second winter. The six member party had courage, spirit and tenacity - the alternative was death. 58013, £825.

Richards Robert L., Dr John Rae, Caedmon of Whitby, 1985 First Edition, 231pp, hardback, original blue cloth, very slight sunning to spine, near Fine in near Fine price clipped dw. Now a very scarce and important title., The outcome of Lady Franklin's efforts to glorify the dead of the Franklin expedition meant Rae was shunned somewhat by the British establishment after he suggested the men had resorted to cannibalism. Although he found the last link in the much sought after Northwest Passage Rae was never awarded a Knighthood, nor was he remembered at the time of his death. He was the only major explorer of the era not to receive a knighthood. Only recently has Rae's contribution to exploration been acknowledged and he is now considered by many to be the greatest Arctic Explorer of all time. 74145, £220.

THE DIARIES OF CAPTAIN SCOTT

A Limited Edition of 450 copies, this copy is not numbered. A lovely reprint retaining much of the appearance of the original First Edition., The official account of the expedition was by Borchgrevink under the title of First on the Antarctic Continent in 1901, but Bernacchi had also been busy writing and his account of the expedition was also published in 1901. Bernacchi was the first Australian to play a significant part in Antarctic exploration. His father was from Italy where they owned large estates on the shores of Lake Como. His father visited Tasmania on a cruise and liked it so much that he subsequently established a farm on Maria island and this is where Louis grew up. An intelligent boy who loved the sciences he was anxious for adventure and after just missing out on joining the Belgian Antarctic Expedition in 1897 he travelled to London in 1898 and persuaded Borchgrevink to take him as the expedition physicist. As a result he became one of the first party to overwinter on the Antarctic continent. Bernacchi's account is a gem of Antarctic literature, even if he did confine most of his personal feelings, not infrequently negative ones, to his journal. To him we are indebted for many beautiful literary images of the voyage. Bernacchi was only 26 years old when his book was published but he already had an unmistakable writing ability which he illustrated attractively with his own photographs., 72578, £115.

The Life and Diaries of Eric Stewart Marshall, Jackleberry Press, 2020 First Edition, 360pp, pictorial hardback, New, signed by Angie Butler and also with a label signed by Beau Riffenburgh., On 9 January 1909, Eric Stewart Marshall joined Ernest Shackleton and two others in raising the Union Jack high on the desolate Antarctic Plateau, the farthest south achieved by man. A month and a half later, his individual heroics saved his three companions, who would otherwise have been doomed to icy graves. Two years on, Marshall stood alone on a ridge deep in the interior of New Guinea, the first man from the Western world ever to see it. But Marshall received neither fame nor fortune from these great achievements and became ever more embittered. As time passed, much of Marshall's spleen was directed at Shackleton. This book tells the story – and presents the stirring and previously unpublished diaries – of this remarkable explorer, the man who would prove to be Shackleton's severest critic. The depth of Butler and Riffenburgh's research is a feat of its own and we are given a unique insight into an Edwardian whose recognition is long overdue., 71654, £28.

Charcot Jean-Baptiste, Towards The South Pole Aboard The "Francais". The First French Expedition To The Antarctic 1903-1905., Bluntisham Books / Erskine Press, 2004 reprint, 247pp, highly decorative boards, hardback, New. A beautifully produced reprint of the original French edition., The first French expedition to the Antarctic set sail in August 1903 under the command of Jean-Baptiste Charcot. He had sailed the waterways of Europe until, in 1902, he visited Iceland and the Faroes. He reached the Arctic Circle and his taste for polar voyaging was established. On his return he commissioned a vessel to be built - Francais. By this stage, although an amateur, Charcot had become quite well known, though Scott referred to him—with possibly a touch of disparagement—as 'the polar gentleman'. In August 1903 he set sail. Charcot had designed the ship so that each man could have a private space of his own and he was particularly proud of his choice of food and wine and the fact that fresh bread was baked three times a week. His diary reveals a man of culture and sensitivity. He charted new coasts and undertook scientific work. This is a fascinating insight into a totally different style of Antarctic exploration., 72371, £35.

Davis John King, With The "Aurora" In The Antarctic 1911-1914., Bluntisham Books / Erskine Press, 2007 reprint, 183pp, decorative boards, hardback, small bump to top corners, near Fine. The decorative boards closely match the design and appearance of the original edition retaining much of the character of the original First Edition., Mawson and Davis became closely acquainted during Shackleton's 1907-9 expedition, and Mawson later recruited Davis to be captain of the Aurora on the 1911-14 Australasian Antarctic Expedition. Originally published in a small edition in 1919 this is the record of the voyages of Aurora in Southern Waters, written from a sailor's point of view. Built in 1876 as an Arctic whaler Aurora, though old and battered, captained by Davis, managed three Antarctic voyages in support of Mawson and his men. This attractive facsimile of the original edition makes a scarce and fascinating book readily available., 72427, £29.

Daly Regina W., The Shackleton Letters. Behind The Scenes Of The Nimrod Expedition, The Erskine Press, 2009 First Edition, 360pp, hardback, New in dw. A Limited Edition of 450 copies, individually numbered, with bookplate signed by Regina W. Daly., Ernest Shackleton was obsessed by the Antarctic. He was disappointed at his showing during Scott's Discovery expedition and he wanted to be the first to the South Pole, partly for glory but also because he felt he had to redeem himself. Raising money was fraught with difficulty but in 1907 he finally set sail, aboard the Nimrod. Here, gathered together for the first time, are some 160 letters and telegrams exploring his endeavours to find finance and to prepare for the expedition. His emotions are revealed through personal correspondence with Scott, Dr Edward Wilson, Sir Clements Markham and many others. The last section of the book reproduces Shackleton's intimate letters to his wife, Emily, and to Elspeth Beardmore, for whom he had a deep affection. Many of these letters have never before been published., 68942, £29.

A facsimile reprint., Narrative of an expedition made under the authority of the U.S. Navy Dept and financed by J. G. Bennett. The Jeannette sailed from San Francisco, July 8th 1879, called at a number of places in the Bering Sea, visited Cape Serdze Kamen and went adrift near Herald Island. The drift continued north and west for nineteen months until the ship was finally crushed and sank on June 12th 1881, northeast of the New Siberian Islands. Account of the subsequent search for the thirty three men who left the ship, of whom twenty five reached the Lena delta, where De Long and eleven other perished., 57273, £52.

Debenham Frank, In The Antarctic. Stories Of Scott's Last Expedition., John Murray, 1952 First Edition, 146pp, original cloth, map endpapers with sellotape residue and label removal marks, private bookplate placed over our previous label, probably exlibrary but not obvious, Good+ in VG dw with slight sunning to spine., Frank Debenham was a member of the scientific staff on Scott's 1910 expedition. He conceived the idea for a Polar Institute whilst sitting in Shackleton's hut at Cape Royds and after the death of the polar party he campaigned for a living memorial to Scott. On 26th November 1920 the Scott Polar Research Institute came into being and Frank Debenham was its first director. When he returned from the Antarctic in 1913 he resolved not to publish any reminiscences but at the urging of many friends he published, in 1952, IN THE ANTARCTIC which deals chiefly with the three years he spent there. The book has extensive illustrations which the author hopes ....may convey something of the spirit of harmony which reigned in that cramped but cosy hut forty years ago., 73355, £25.

D'Urville J. Dumont, Voyage au Pole Sud et dans L'Oceanie sur les Corvettes L'Astrolabe et la Zelee. Volume 3, Cambridge University Press, 2012 reprint, 453pp, paperback, New., In 1836, the French King Louis-Philippe, enthusiastic for Southern Hemisphere exploration, supported J. Dumont d Urville's plan for a circumnavigation focusing on the South Seas. D Urville, 1790-1842, had already distinguished himself on two Pacific expeditions and was eager to rival the achievements of James Cook. Between 1837 and 1840, the ships Astrolabe and Zelee explored the waters of the Antarctic area and Oceania in extremely harsh conditions: almost forty crew members died or deserted. However, d Urville discovered a new portion of the Antarctic coast, shed light on the ethnography of several Pacific islands and brought back multitudes of botanical specimens. His impressive contributions to the fields of geography, natural history and ethnography were gathered in this ten-volume work, published between 1841 and 1846. Volume 3, published in 1842, gives a detailed account of life and traditions in Chile and on the island of Mangareva., 66632, £15.

Fenton James H. It is now presented in black gift box with the cover of the booklet laid on the lid. It is accompanied by a 12pp pamphlet of biographical details, newspaper articles and pictures, 'Charles Reginald Ford 1880-1972: notes on an adventurous life' by Crispin de Boos; a coloured reproduction of 4pp advertisement for the graphic lecture 'Farthest South' presented by Ford in Australia; and two reproduction Antarctic postcards. Ford's booklet is 32pp, with 13 illustrations, the cover is linen-textured card. Only 400 copies have been produced., This is probably the rarest of all first-hand accounts of Scott's Discovery Expedition. Ford was a steward on the expedition and is notable mainly for being the first man to break his leg skiing in the Antarctic. Upon the Expedition's return Ford acted as Scott's secretary during the leader's lecture tour. Some of his photographs were used by Scott in The Voyages of the 'Discovery'. He moved to New Zealand in 1906 and began to study architecture and later became a partner in one of that country's most prestigious firms. Antarctica was published privately in 1908 and this is a facsimile of his original booklet. Ford, in a letter to a friend in 1963, confirmed that Scott himself gave him permission

G. Hurtig Ltd, 1971 rep, 459pp, folding maps, original red cloth, Fine in Fine dw. A lovely copy of an important title., Despite all their daring and enterprise, few of the early English fur trade explorers possessed the skill or carried the necessary instruments to report fully their discoveries. It was left to Samuel Hearne, an observant and industrious Hudson's Bay employee, to publish the first comprehensive account of the inhabitants and terrain under the company's control. Rumours of an ocean passage leading west from Hudson's Bay had led to accusations that the company was concealing the potentialities of its territory. Also reports of a copper mine in the far north had stirred the hopes of company officials that rich deposits awaited discovery. To put an end to the hypothesis of a salt water channel and to establish the true mineral wealth of the area, an expedition under Hearne's command was authorised in 1769. Two initial attempts to reach the Arctic proved exhausting but fruitless. In 1770, Hearne set forward a third time, accompanied by the capable Indian guide Matonabee, whose prestige and authority in the region seemed a guarantee of success. The party reached the mouth of the Coppermine River, establishing Hearne as the first European to see the North American Arctic and dissolving the myth of an ocean channel through the continent. To their disappointment the copper mine was of negligible value. After much revision, his work was finally published 1795, 3 years after his death. This is a facsimile reprint., 64946, £75.

The Return of the Uruguay from the Antarctic in 1903., Adelie Books, 2004 First Edition, xii, 24pp, hardback, grey cloth, marbled boards, no dustwrapper issued, New, with tiny bump to corners., Most Antarctic polar buffs are familiar with the Swedish Antarctic Expedition of 1901-4 under the leadership of Otto Nordenskjöld, but because all of the primary sources are in Spanish and Swedish few are familiar with the interesting homeward bound journey aboard the Argentinean relief vessel Uruguay. The ship was severely damaged in a storm north of the South Shetland Islands, and just what transpired between the Argentinean and Swedish staffs became a matter of intriguing controversy and pride for the Argentineans. When the Corvette Uruguay Was Dismasted is an English language translation of a rare pamphlet entitled Cuando la Corbeta Uruguay Quedo Desarbolada (Buenos Aires: 1946) that brought the controversy to light, together with an historical introduction and appendices containing the relevant, original Spanish and Swedish materials. Under the command of Adrien de Gerlache de Gomery it was the first expedition of a purely scientific nature and it provided a wealth of information along with the first pictures ever taken on the ice. Though the explorers did not reach the Pole they were the first to overwinter in the Antarctic. On board the ship were Roald Amundsen, the future conqueror of the South Pole and Dr Frederick Cook, who had already explored much of the Arctic with Commander Robert Peary and who later claimed to be the first to reach the North Pole. Georges Lecoigne was appointed first officer, and therefore was second in command, on board Belgica. He was also responsible for hydrography , Mornement Allan & Riffenburgh Beau, Mertz & I ... The Antarctic Diary of Belgrave Edward Sutton Ninnis, The Erskine Press, 2014 First Edition, 448pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper. Individually numbered, only 400 copies., On 10 November 1912, the Far Eastern Party, consisting of three men and seventeen dogs set off on a sledging trip. The men were Douglas Mawson, Xavier Mertz and Belgrave Ninnis. Two of these men tragically died, and only the leader, Douglas Mawson, returned after what has been described as the greatest survival story in the history of exploration. It is evident from his diary that the young Ninnis was determined to follow in his father's steps as a polar explorer. Inside the diary is the story of a young man and his determined and ultimately successful attempt to become a polar explorer. It is a continuous record, from March 1908 to the final entry on 9 November 1912, though this book concentrates on his Antarctic endeavours., 74018, £32.

Murdoch heard about the expedition from William Speirs Bruce, who had already signed on the expedition. Murdoch signed on the Balaena within a week of its departure. He believed that his artistic talents would benefit the scientists, he became not only the artist but also the expedition's principal chronicler. His narrative covers the voyage south at great length, providing a fascinating picture of shipboard life. The Falkland Islands account is well detailed, and the Antarctic section of the narrative contains astute observations of the wildlife and sealing operations. Bruce contributed a chapter summarising the scientific observations.*, 70022, £120.

Murray James & Marston George, Antarctic Days. Riffenburgh Beau, Aurora. Douglas Mawson And The Australasian Antarctic Expedition 1911-14., The Erskine Press, 2011 First Edition, 525pp, folding map, hardback, New in dustwrapper., In 1911 Douglas Mawson organised and led the Australasian Expedition – a scientific investigation of the Antarctic on a scale never before considered. At the same time it was responsible for exploration of vastly more territory than any other Antarctic expedition. It consisted of three land bases operated by 32 men, seven major sledging journeys (as well as numerous shorter ones), and a full oceanographic programme in addition to its shore based scientific studies. Yet what was intended by Mawson to be a scientific exercise devoid of heroic adventure, also proved to be a tale of death, determination, and raw courage. Sir Edmund Hillary once described it as 'the greatest survival story in the history of exploration'. The dynamic character of Mawson, the expedition's sheer scale, and the fact that most of what happened on it has never entered the public consciousness were very appealing reasons to investigate such an epic venture. The result is the first examination of the full expedition since Mawson's 'The Home of the Blizzard' was published in 1913., 74021, £35.

On the expedition he studied the effects of the Antarctic environment on other members of the expedition and carried out medical tests and examinations. It has been suggested that through this work he laid the foundations for modern physiological research in the Antarctic. When Aurora returned to collect the expedition, Mawson, Ninnis and Mertz had not returned from their sledging expedition and McLean volunteered to stay and if necessary search for Mawson. Aurora sailed on 8 February, leaving the small party behind and within hours of the ship's departure, Mawson returned in terrible physical condition, bearing with him the tragic tale of the deaths of Ninnis and Mertz. A wireless message was sent to Davis, asking him to come back to pick up the remaining men but the weather conditions prevented the men on shore from reaching the ship, and Davis eventually made the decision to leave the seven of them at Cape Denison. Mawson, McLean and the others would spend another year at their base. The story of the second year at Commonwealth Bay was originally told in Mawson's The Home of the Blizzard. The published primary sources about the second wintering have in the past been the diaries of Mawson and Madigan,*

THREE SOUTH GEORGIA TITLES

PUTTING SOUTH GEORGIA ON THE MAP by Alec Trendall

The sub-Antarctic island of South Georgia, about 170 kilometres long and up to 30 kilometres wide, lies at the southern end of the Atlantic Ocean, about 2000 kilometres east of Cape Horn. Although South Georgia was visited with increasing frequency after its discovery by Captain Cook in 1775, and was for a long time a busy base for the sealing and whaling industries, a properly surveyed map of the island was not published until 1958. That map resulted from a series of small privately-organised expeditions – the South Georgia Surveys – initiated and led by Duncan Carse. Alec Trendall, who served as geologist with the South Georgia Surveys of 1951-52 and 1953-54, tells for the first time the full story of Carse's expeditions to South Georgia in the 1950s.

SOUTH GEORGIA. GATEWAY TO ANTARCTICA by Kohl-Larsen Ludwig,

South Georgia had been the gateway to the Antarctic for many of the early expeditions to the continent. Ludwig Kohl-Larsen first visited the island in 1911 as a doctor on the Otto Nordenskjöld expedition. Seeing South Georgia kindled in him an enthusiasm for returning to the Antarctic. He married Captain Larsen's daughter and used his close connection with the Larsen family to return, firstly in 1924 on board the first whaling factory ship (Sir James Clark Ross) and then, in 1929, to travel around South Georgia and film the wildlife. He spent a summer camped in various parts of the island, exploring the interior on skis, collecting specimens and filming. This is the story of this private expedition, translated for the first time from the German.

Frank Debenham was one of the youngest members of Scott's Terra Nova Expedition of 1911-13 being one of the three geologists. On returning from Antarctica, Debenham went to Cambridge university to write up his notes and results from the expedition. He was severely injured in the First World War but afterwards continued his work on the expedition reports, becoming a lecturer. In 1920 along with Raymond Priestley, using the remainder of public donations received following the deaths of those in Scott's Polar Party, Debenham co-founded the Scott Polar Research Institute, as a part of Cambridge University. This was as a repository of information and source of expertise for future expeditions to both polar regions. Debenham was the first director of the Institute from 1926 to 1946. Along with Raymond Priestley and James Wordie a scientist on Shackleton's Endurance expedition, he made Cambridge the centre of polar research.

Taylor Andrew, Two Years Below The Horn. A Personal Memoir of Operation Tabarin, The Erskine Press, 2017 First Edition, 351pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper., *Early in 1944, nine men landed on a tiny, barren island off the west coast of the Graham Land Peninsula in Antarctica. Armed with only a small assortment of rifles and pistols and with an obsolete 12 pounder mounted on the bows of their decrepit supply vessel, officially, their purpose was to prevent German U-boats and surface raiders from using Antarctic and Sub-Antarctic harbours for refuelling and resupply. Unofficially, they were tasked with reasserting British territorial rights in the face of increasingly confident incursions by neutral Argentina. This two year expedition, code-named Operation Tabarin, was the precursor to the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey, FIDS. Thomson John, Lost... The Antarctic Diary of Thomas Orde Lees, The Erskine Press, 2020 First Edition, x, 498pp, hardback, original terracotta cloth, New in dustwrapper. One of only 250 copies., *The story of Shackleton and his Endurance expedition is very well known. His attempt to cross the Antarctic continent failed spectacularly, and when the ship was crushed, he and his crew made their way to the desolation of Elephant Island. From there, Shackleton and five crew made the epic voyage to South Georgia in the James Caird to ultimately arrange the rescue of the remaining crew. Orde Lees was selected originally as the motor expert but when this became redundant he became the storeman. He was responsible for maintaining and distributing supplies on the Endurance and on Elephant Island and naturally in this capacity he became an easy target for the bored and hungry. He was the only member of the expedition who maintained a personal daily diary of the voyage, from Day 1 to the day the rescued men left South America for England more than two years later. Lees was capable of appreciating and describing in touching and sensitive language a beautiful polar dawn or nature at its most inspiring. Wilson, David M., Nimrod Illustrated. Pictures from Lieutenant Shackleton's British Antarctic Expedition, Reardon Publishing, 2009 First Edition, 168pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper, signed by David Wilson, the great nephew of Edward Wilson., *Published to celebrate the centenary of one of the most exciting expeditions of the Heroic Age of Antarctic. The book is a remarkable collage of expedition photographs, paintings and ephemera in a deliberate reminiscence of the expedition scrapbooks kept by so many of the expedition participants at the time. Many of the images are rarely seen, if ever before published, whilst others are better known. Together with quotations from the diaries of expedition participants, they tell the story of the British Antarctic Expedition 1907-1909 which saw the first use of ponies and motor cars in the Antarctic; achieved the first ascent of Mount Erebus; achieved the first attainment of the South Magnetic Pole; and, took Shackleton within 100 miles of the South Geographic Pole to attain a dramatic new 'Farthest South' record. Woodman David C., Strangers Among Us, McGill-Queen's University Press, 1995 First Edition, xvi, 166pp, private bookplate, Fine in Fine dw., In 1868 American explorer Charles Francis Hall interviewed several Inuit hunters who spoke of strangers travelling through their land. Hall immediately jumped to the conclusion that the hunters were talking about survivors of the Franklin expedition and set off for the Melville Peninsula, the location of many of the sightings, to collect further stories and evidence to support his supposition. His theory, however, was roundly dismissed by historians of his day, who concluded that the Inuit had been referring to other white explorers, despite significant discrepancies between the Inuit evidence and the records of other expeditions. In Strangers Among Us Woodman re-examines the Inuit tales in light of modern scholarship and concludes that Hall's initial conclusions are supported by Inuit remembrances, remembrances that do not correlate with other expeditions but are consistent with Franklin's., 73335, £65.

A FEW LIMITED EDITION COPIES LEFT

NIMROD ILLUSTRATED

Pictures from Lieutenant Shackleton's British Antarctic Expedition

David M. Wilson, Reardon Publishing, 2009 First Edition, 168pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper, signed by David Wilson, the great nephew of Edward Wilson. £42

A Limited Edition of only 150 copies is also available, leather bound, boxed, signed and numbered, £180

Published to celebrate the centenary of the expedition the book is a remarkable collage of expedition photographs, paintings and ephemera. They tell the story of the British Antarctic Expedition 1907-1909 which saw the first use of ponies and motor cars in the Antarctic; achieved the first ascent of Mount Erebus; achieved the first attainment of the South Magnetic Pole; and, took Shackleton within 100 miles of the South Geographic Pole to attain a dramatic new 'Farthest South' record.

WITH SCOTT BEFORE THE MAST

Francis Davies and edited by Joy Watts, Reardon Publishing, 2020 First Edition, 152pp, hardback, New, signed by publisher and contributor, Nicholas Reardon. £34

A Limited Edition of only 160 copies is also available, Special leather bound signed and numbered, £175

These are the Journals of Francis Davies Leading Shipwright RN when on board Captain Scott's "Terra Nova" British Antarctic Expedition 1910 – 1913.

Never seen before photos and historical artefacts, kept safe by his decadences for over 100 years. It is a unique below decks prospective as most records of the expedition are the accounts of officers. Before the mast means 'to serve as an ordinary seaman in a sailing ship'. This makes it a rare and hugely important account, presenting a viewpoint from the lower ranks.

THE ANTARCTIC JOURNALS OF REGINALD SKELTON. 'Another Little Job for the Tinker'

Reginald Skelton [edited by Judy Skelton], Reardon Publishing, 2004 First Edition, 232pp, hardback, New in dustwrapper, signed by Judy Skelton £34

A Limited Edition of only 150 copies is also available, leather bound, boxed, signed by Judy Skelton and not numbered, £150

Skelton was the Chief Engineer aboard RSS Discovery, accompanying Captain Robert Falcon Scott on his first expedition to the Antarctic from 1901 to 1904. His diaries, edited by his granddaughter Judy, give a fascinating and absorbing account of the dramas, tragedies and adventures encountered by Scott and his men during their two years based at Hut Point.

Wild Comdr. Frank, The Story of the Quest, The Erskine Press, 2016, 4pp, facsimile, New., The Quest, under the command of Ernest Shackleton, sailed from St Katherine's Dock, London on 17 September 1921. This was Shackleton's 4th Antarctic journey, the purpose of which was ostensibly to circumvent the Antarctic continent, looking for lost sub-polar islands. Shackleton was not well—and he saw this last voyage as a chance to relive old times. He appeared somewhat listless and was drinking too much. When the ship arrived in Buenos Aires he had what appeared to be a heart attack but refused to let any doctor attend to him. On 4 January 1922 the ship reached South Georgia and the following morning he had another heart attack and died. The Quest continued under the command of Frank Wild but there was little enthusiasm for further exploration and soon returned to South Georgia where, on 5 March 1922, Shackleton was buried. The Quest returned to England. In 1923 Wild undertook a series of lectures and talks about the voyage and this is a facsimile of a 1923 4 page brochure advertising these talks. There are six photographs, a page on the Quest's trip and a page on Commander Frank Wild, CBE. The brochure is 255x190mm – 10 x 7 ½ inches., 63597, £8.

THE HAKLUYT SOCIETY

Founded in 1846, the Hakluyt Society is a registered charity based in London, which seeks to advance knowledge and education by the publication of scholarly editions of primary records of voyages, travels and other geographical material. The society is named after Richard Hakluyt (1552-1616), collector and editor of narratives of voyages and travels and other documents relating to English interests overseas, his most celebrated work being The Principal Navigations, Voyages and Discoveries of the English Nation. His name was almost certainly pronounced hak'loowt, the family having come from the forest of Clwyd in the historic county of Radnor.

We are pleased to offer a large collection of 227 Volumes from the First, Second, Third and Extra Series of publications. The set of volumes are from the private library of The Cruising Association and bear a bookplate, occasional stamp and most with mark to the spine.
